

BROADWAY!

B L A C K

WHEN THE THEATRE GOES DARK

Broadway Black: Call for Writers

BroadwayBlack.com

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

BroadwayBlack.com is dedicated to highlighting the achievements and successes of African-American theatre artists on and off the Broadway stage. For so long, our voices have been skimmed over inside and outside of The Great White Way. However, we know we have experiences to share that are essential. BroadwayBlack.com serves as a collective of things we all care for. It is a platform for all things Black theatre. Created for the child in all of us who looked up to the stage searching for the faces that looked like ours. Celebrating the dedication of those who hand over their life to give all they have to the stage. Shining light on those that continue our journey. Paying tribute to those who blazed the way for our story to be told, seen, and heard on The Great Way.

Broadway Black is expanding its writing staff. We are looking for talented writers to join our team. Experience in writing for a publication is not as important as your passion for the theatre. This is an unpaid position; however, it will give you opportunities to expand your portfolio, be published daily on a nationally renowned platform, and potentially interview up-and-coming and established talent in the theatre.

Responsibilities:

- Must commit to writing at least one article daily, Sunday through Thursday.
- Conduct professional interviews (in-person, over the phone or through email).
- Represent Broadway Black at theatre events, when necessary and appropriate.

Requirements:

- Excellent writing and proofreading skills
- Attention to detail
- Ability to think creatively and write in an engaging way
- Excel under tight deadline
- AP Writing Style
- Team Oriented
- Superb Interviewing Skills
- Outgoing
- Knowledge of WordPress and SEO is helpful, but not required.

Submit your résumé and links to three writing samples to AprilReign@BroadwayBlack.com If you do not have links, please upload your writing samples in .doc format. Due to the number of submissions, only those candidates selected for an interview will receive a response. Interviews will be scheduled on a rolling basis until all positions are filled. We appreciate your interest!
